THE HANGING OF A HUSBAND AND WIFE IN EFFIGY.

Remarkable Lawsuit that Pollowed-Derision that Cost a Man his Liberty-From the London Datty Neics.

At the Kingston (England) Assizes on Parch 25, before Mr. Justice Lush.

James Woods, a well-dressed man, surrendered to take his trial for publishing a false, scandalous and defamatory libel concerning James Bryson and his wife, Caroline Bryson.

The indictment contained several counts, one of which alleged that the defendant, with a view to villfy, injure, and bring into contempt, the said Bryson and his wife, had erected a gallows, and had caused efficies representing the prosecutors to be hung thereon, in a public place, with the intention above stated.

Mr. E. Clark conducted the prosecution; Mr. Oppenheim appeared for the defendant.

The case was a rather remarkable one, and some of the facts that were elicited caused a good deal of amusement. The prosecutor and his wife, having purchased some property at Woking, went to reside there about two years ago, and they had employed the defendant, who was a workingman, to do some jobs for them; but eventually disputes appeared to have arisen between them, and proceedings took place in the County Court.

The defendant was the owner of an allotment.

laboring man named Stocker was then exexpressed an opinion that intended to represent the the effigies were intended to be prosecuter and his wife.

By Mr. Oppenheim—He thought it was intended for Mr. Bryson because the effizy had a white hat on. [Laughter] As for Mrs. Bryson, he thought the figure was intended for her because else?

Witness—Yes; he called out to me "Have you seen the Shan? [A roar of haughter.]
Mr. Oppenhelm—Well, and I suppose you thought it was the Shan? thought it was the Shan?
Witness—I thought the man might be intended for the Shah. [Laughter.]
Mr. Oppenheim—And that the woman was his wife. [Renewed laughter.]
Witness—Yes.
Mr. Oppenheim—Then you understood the defendant to say that he was going to put the Shah and the woman you took to be his wife in his garden to frighten away the geese, and prevent them from eating his cabbages? [Roars of laughter]
The learned counsel for the defendant, in his

laughter)
The learned counsel for the defendant, in his address to the jury, contended that the evidence was insufficient in the first place to show that the defendant was the person who had placed those efficies upon the ground, and secondly that it had not been at all proved conclusively that they were intended to represent Mr. Bryson and his wife. He also remarked upon the fact that Mr. Bryson had not been called as a witness, and said that they might infer from this that he was no party to the prosecution that had been instituted against the defendant.

SUMMING UP.

SUMMING UP.

Mr. Justice Lush, in summing up the case to the jury, said he thought there could be no doubt that the exhibition of the efficies and the statements chalked upon the board amounted to a scardatous and malicious libel; and the only questions for their consideration were, first, whether it was made out to their satisfaction that the defendant was the person who had placed the efficies in the public place in question; and, secondity whether they were intended to represent Mr. Bryson and his wife.

The jury, after deliberating for a short time in the box, expressed a wish to reture. They were absent about half an hour, and on their return into court they found the defendant guilty.

The defendant was shortly afterward brought up for judgment, and several respectable witnesses were called, who gave him an excellent character.

Mr. Justice Lush, on passing sentence, said he nesses were called, who gave him an excellent character.

Mr. Justice Lush, on passing sentence, said he could not help regarding the case as one of a very aggravated character, and the libel of which he had been convicted was most unjustifiable and malicious. But for the good character he had received he should certainly have passed a much heavier sentence, but he feltit to be his duty, under all the cucumstances, to order him to be imprisoned for four months, and to pay a fine of Elo, and to be further imprisoned until that fine was p.id.

From the New Orients Programe.

The little town of Pearlington on Pearl river is pretty well overflowed. A branch of the Potevent mills is situated there, and consequently the place is well peopled with negro laborers. orers.
Oid "Uncle Billy," a venerable old darkey with side whiskers, has a cabin built near the river bank, and was among the first inundated. He was accosted on the street the next morning after the rise by a gentieman with:

CREMATION IN MILWAUKEE. A Husband Burning the Corpse of his Wife-

A Private Letter Communicated to The Sun. Sin: In answer to yours of the 15th inst., I have to state the following: The attempted case of cremation took place in October, 1855. The principals were Russians, and persons of wealth, culture, and refinement. The husband proceeded in consequence of the expressed wish of the wife that her body should be burned. It is said that a mutual vow existed between them that such should be the disposal of the body by the survivor after the death of

of the body by the survivor after the death of either.

After a portion of the fuel had been accumulated upon the proposed spot, near and overlooking Lake Michigan, the Sheriff off the county interfered, and caused the body to be interred. I am unable to ascertain from what quarter the complaint originated. The first information upon record is that the Sheriff applied to the Police Magistrate for a proper warrant and advice upon the subject. The statutes and common law were searched in vain for a case in point, and the court instructed the Sheriff that he had full power to prevent a riot. This was, however, a pretext, as only some fifty persons were assembled on the occasion. There was no arrest. The husband offered no opposition, quietly acquiescing in the warning of the authorities, while claiming that it was but religious reedom to allow him to make such disposition of the body, and that there was no law to prevent him.

I do not learn that the religious bodies moved.

political canvass.

In various communications the aspects of the affair were presented, seeking to do justice to Mr. Preil white not advocating the process, and from this prolonged discussion the affair became notorious throughout the country.
